SCHOOL OF ENVIRONMENTAL DESIGN ACTIVATED JULY 1, 1969

Dear Alumni:

I am pleased with this opportunity to officially inform you that the administration of the undergraduate and graduate programs in landscape architecture was transferred from the College of Agriculture to a new School of Environmental Design which was created by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia at its March, 1969 meeting. At that time, Dr. Fred Davison, President of the University, asked me to serve as Dean and I assumed my new duties July 1.

Always cautious in adding major programs to its organizational structure through its 168 years of existence, the University has been none the less responsive to the needs, challenges and opportunities of the time. At the beginning of the present decade, the number of schools and colleges comprising the University altogether totaled 11. In the 1960's, however, as mankind has been confronted with a multiplicity of problems such as urbanization, population expansion, poverty amidst affluence and the like, the University has created two new schools. Both are concerned with conservation of resources, human and environmental. In 1964, the School of Social Work was established, and this year the School of Environmental Design came into being.

The true challenges within the field of landscape architecture have changed from top to bottom in the four decades since the program was initiated at Georgia in 1928. It is not necessary for me to remind

Dear Alumni:

COVER In desperation the Newsletter editor asked Prof. Nicholls to design the cover. Desperation led to confusion and the Newsletter editor then had to find out what it meant. His explanation: "The symbol on the left is an old friend familiar to many former students. The original design was used as the theme for the First Refresher Course for Landscape Architects given in 1966. Subsequently, RON TINDALL developed it into a decal for use by the Landscape Club. The symbol on the right is a new one and represents the philosophy of design (delta) with natural process (the reversed arrows). Design can work with process (straight arrow) but inevitably it sometimes "bends" process. Graduates who completed the Landscape Ecology class will understand..."

The reprodection process caused the design to "melt". However, since it is the Christmas Season, we decided to consider it symbolic of snow. any alumni that the days of looking after perennial borders and palatial gardens has bowed to city planning, urban renewal and designing environments that meet the needs of a growing population whether in an overcrowded public park or a sooty, concrete city center. The role is as functional as it is aesthetic.

To fill this changing scope, curriculum changes and strengthened ties with other disciplines keynote plans for Environmental Design, now that it is contained in a new, stronger organization. The BLA (a five-year curriculum) and the MLA programs (with 150 students currently enrolled) will continue to serve as the main base from which the School will operate. Primary objectives are:

- ".... Deepen and broaden the education of landscape architects and others concerned with the complex and critical job of saving our environment from death and decay.
- Intensify the training of landscape architects for their new role on the multidisciplinary urban design team.
- Strengthen the joint program in city planning with Georgia Tech and generally place more emphasis on problems involving large-scale planning in urban design, land-use planning, and other aspects of regional planning.
- Develop more well-rounded landscape architects for college teaching and research."

There are approximately 500 Landscape Architecture Alumni of the University. It is my pleasure to herewith advise you that, as of 1969, you are to consider yourselves alumni of the School of Environmental Design. We are happy to claim each of you. We need your moral support and loyalty. I, personally, take much pride in the continuous accomplishments of the graduates. Our undergraduate program has gained the status in America and abroad of being second to none. Programs of Graduate instruction and research are now in a position to move ahead. I am certain that in the immediate future, year by year, each of you will find reason for an ever expanding pride in your alma mater.

With warm personal regards and best wishes of the season.

Sincerely yours,

Futur D.C Hubert B. Owens, Dean

FACULTY NEWS

Professors STOVALL, NICHOLLS, HAYNES and RUNDELL have formed an organization called Designers Collaborative, with offices located at 564 Pulaski Street in Athens. Architect David Lunde and Interior Designer Kingsley Wu also share space at the same location.

Professors BEERY, STOVALL and WATERS served as Instructors at the Landscape Design Study Course #3 at Kennesaw Junior College, November 3 and 4, 1969.

Professor JACK HAYNES and wife Carolyn announce the birth of a son, Peter Jonathan, on June 13.

JOHN C. WATERS was elected Trustee of the Georgia Conservancy and also Chairman of the Georgia Conservancy's Historic Site Commission.

Professor JACK HAYNES spent the summer developing outlines, reference material etc., for a course called Computer Applications in Landscape Architecture which is being taught this fall as a two-hour elective course. It covers Computer Graphics, Computer Filing and Retrieval of Plant Material information, and the use of the Computer for Site Engineering Computations. Professor Haynes also made application for and obtained approval for a 22 month extension of Highway Beautification Research Project Number 6602. The purpose of the extension is to utilize the computer and retrieval program of plant material information, to add to data base of information and to determine the efficienty of using this program as compared to older planting design procedures.

This computer program was designed and developed by CHARLIE GODFREY as part of Highway Beautification Research Project No. 5502. Charlie designed the computer program as a means by which landscape architects could more accurately select appropriate plant materials based on design criteria and site conditions. Charlie is currently continuing the development of this computer program for application in private practice.

FORMER FACULTY

LAWRENCE J. READER who left the faculty to return to private practice has announced the formation of Wolfe, Reader and Associates, Landscape Architects and Land Planners in Bethesda, Maryland. Larry and Marty also announce the birth of a son, Jonathan, in June, 1969.

FRIEDRICH OEHMICHEN is teaching (in French) History of Environmental Design at the University of Montreal in Canada.

UNIVERSITY BOTANICAL GARDEN

In 1968 President Davison appointed a sub-committee of the Campus Planning and Development Committee, of which Prof. ROBERT NICHOLLS is Chairman, to consider and present ideas and plans for the development of a comprehensive Botanical Garden for the University. A tract of land west of the White Hall Road, located some two miles south of the campus, has been designated for this purpose. In the beginning, Prof. OWENS was named to serve as a member of the Committee. When he assumed his duties as Dean, Prof. WILLIAM BEERY was named to succeed him as a Representative of the School of Environmental Design.

During Fall Quarter plans and sketches were prepared by FUMIAKI TAKANO, graduate student, under the supervision of Prof. Beery for use in a promotional brochure which is scheduled for printing during the first half of 1970. The drawings include sketches of views and plants and a general plan. This plan will not be the actual plan to be followed in the development of the Garden, but will give the public, representatives of foundations and federal bureaus a general idea of the development.

Such a comprehensive collection of plants has long been needed for the University's instructional and research work. The Garden Club of Georgia has presented $1,000 as the first donation to the undertaking. This facility will mean much to the School of Environmental Design.

IFLA MEETING IN SWEDEN

DEAN OWENS, accompanied by MRS. OWENS, attended the Grand Council Meeting of the International Federation of Landscape Architects held in Stockholm August 16-23, 1969. The week was occupied with business sessions, held at Sweden House in the central city; tours of Stockholm's parks - considered to be the best planned and financed municipal system of parks in the world; the new towns of VALLINGBY, BLACKEBERG, HASSELBY, FARSTA, and SKARHOLMENS; the Old City, including the King's Palace and Garden; the Museum of Old Houses and the Children's Zoo at SKANSEN PARK; the famous cemetery (regarded by some experts as the most outstanding example of contemporary landscape design of the 20th Century) and Crematorilt at SKOGSKYRKO-GARDEN. The Owens also attended a number of social functions. Following a week in Stockholm and enrirons, the group went to Finland where they spent two days in HELSINKI and TAPIOLA (a suburb), and three days visiting and inspecting examples of urban planning, forests, lakes, agricultural lands and historic architectural landmarks in Central Finland. The tour ended with an airflight to Leningrad for a three day visit. DR. OWENS is a Vice President of IFLA.

The 11th Biennial Congress of the International Federation of Landscape Architects will be held in Portugal in early September, 1970. The ASLA is a constituent member of IFLA; anyone officially affiliated with ASLA - Member, Associate, or Student Affiliate - is eligible to attend the IFLA Congresses. Plans call for five days of business and program sessions, social functions and tours in Lisbon and environs, followed by a 10-day comprehensive tour of Portugal.

ALUMNI GET-TOGETHER IN SOUTH FLORIDA

On the evening of December 17, JON SEYMOUR, '49, invited the Georgia Landscape Architecture graduates who live in South Florida to his home, 5940 S.W. 73rd Street, Miami, Florida, for an informal gathering. DEAN OWENS, who was in Miami en route to the Bahamas, was the honor guest. He told the assembled group about the new School of Environmental Design and stated its objectives. He also showed slides of the old campus, the stadium and Founders Memorial Garden (and we can assume this showing "precipitated a few nostalgia tears"), students at work in the LAR Building and on the recent field trip to Tennessee and North Carolina, and some examples of recent student work.

Assisting JON with arrangements were his wife Liz, an alumnus of Georgia's Art Department and BILL ROSENBERG,'62, MLA Penn '66. Residing in the Miami area are EUGENE COLQUITT, '52, DEWEY THURMOND, '52, ED ALEXANDER, '59, DAVID ZEIGLER, '68, ED FERNANDEZ, '67, and MIKE REDD, '68. Also invited were Central Florida residents, AL SMITH, '51, HARRIS JOHNSON, '48, MILDRED ROSSMAN ROBERTS, '48, JACK REED, '51, ED HAMMOND, '50, JAN SOLOMON FRIEDMAN, '62, and KEN STEEVES, MLA '69. The following students also attended: DAN CUTLER, JOHN CRAFT, III, JEFF SEBLINK and PAUL BRICKEY.

Plans were made at the meeting for the formation of a South Florida Landscape Architecture Club.
