

CED Has Moved to Jackson Street!

July 18, 2012

College of Environment + Design UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

As of Wednesday, August 1, 2012, some CED academics and services are now located in the new Environment & Design Building (EDB) and Bishop House, both located on Jackson Street. Click the “for more information” button below for details.

What's New?

As of August 1, 2012, some of the programs and services of the College of Environment and Design (CED) are now located at 285 South Jackson Street.

The mid-century, former visual arts building, has been rededicated as the College of Environment & Design's exciting, sustainably rehabilitated, new home and includes Administrative Offices, Owens Library, Circle Gallery, and the Bachelor of Landscape Architecture program.

What Stays the Same?

CED graduate programs remain in their current locations of Denmark Hall (MLA and MHP) and Tanner (MEPD). The Center for Community Design & Preservation continues operation out of the Broad Street Studios. The Founders Memorial Garden Complex remains under the stewardship of CED, and serves as offices for faculty emeriti and the Environmental Ethics Certificate Program.

CED's Future

A campaign has commenced to raise funds for an additional wing to our new home. Our overall goal is $20 million for sustainable brick and mortar construction, as well as to support professorships and other educational enhancements for students in keeping our programs and facilities as innovative and advanced as possible. The campaign begins with naming opportunities in the newly rehabilitated building, in the future wing, as well as opportunities in Denmark Hall where many of our alumni were taught.

The purpose for the addition is to house all of CED's academic programs in the Environment & Design Building (EDB) on Jackson Street. Having all programs in one house will foster cross-disciplinary work as well as a sense of community, collaboration and ingenuity. It will make us the most outstanding example of a College of Environment & Design in the State of Georgia, and potentially in the nation. Denmark Hall will be repurposed for CED's Cultural Landscape Laboratory and other research and design labs for various classes. The Founders Memorial Garden Complex will also be retained and managed by the college in perpetuity for historic preservation, alumni events and educational purposes.

CED's New Mailing Addresses:

For offices and individuals located in EDB, Bishop, and Tanner:

College of Environment & Design
104 Jackson Street Building
285 South Jackson Street
Athens, Georgia 30602

For offices and individuals located in Denmark Hall:

College of Environment & Design
104 Denmark Hall
115 Bocock Street
Athens, Georgia 30602

For the Center for Community Design & Preservation:

College of Environment & Design
Broad Street Studio 1
225 West Broad Street
Athens, Georgia 30602

Who are you looking for?

Dean's Office	104 Jackson Street Building 706-542-1816
External Affairs	Bishop House 706-542-4724
Technology Services	31 Jackson Street Building 706-542-4463

Bachelor of Landscape Architecture	118 Jackson Street Building 706-542-4725
Master of Landscape Architecture	104 Denmark Hall 706-542-4720
Master of Historic Preservation	104 Denmark Hall 706-542-4720
Master of Environmental Planning & Design	202 Tanner Building 706-542-4720
Environmental Ethics Certificate Program	2nd Floor, Founders Garden House 706-542-0935
Center for Community Design & Preservation	Broad Street Studio 1 706-369-5883
Owens Library	121 Jackson Street Building 706-542-8292
Circle Gallery	102 Jackson Street Building 706-542-8292